

MAYOR IS 'FINED' FOR CURIOSITY

Costs Him Box of Candy to Question Reasons for Girl's Report

The next time Mayor Frank Francis takes it upon himself to inquire as to the why and wherefore of extraneous matter in the annual report of the Ogden City street department, he's going to emulate the example of the famous frog and peer about before he takes the plunge.

He said to himself this morning. Incidentally it cost the mayor $1.50 because Miss Annie B. Brown, secretary to Commissioner Chris Flygare, inserted a mention of Senator Harding's election in her annual report.

Here is what Miss Brown said under the heading "River Work." "At the presidential election held on November 2, 1920, Governor Warren G. Harding of Ohio, the Republican candidate, was elected with an overwhelming majority. The Republicans also carried the majority of votes in both houses."

Cleve DeWolf, city recorder, was reading the report. Coming to this section there was marked attention on the part of city officials.

The mayor said he thought he would find out why this was included in the report.

"I'll call Miss Brown. Now everybody keep a straight face."

Miss Brown came in all agog. But she anticipated her inquirers. "I know what you're after. It's about that report. I heard Commissioner Flygare and Mr. Tracy chuckling over it yesterday."

The commissioners chuckled a chuckle or two and then said Miss Brown:

"I don't think it's right to drag me in on the carpet for a little thing like that."

"Well, chimed in Commissioner Ward, 'the mayor just wanted to thank you for bringing the news of victory of the Republicans to his attention.'"

Miss Brown then mentioned that she thought the mayor ought to buy the candy for the crowd.

"Second the motion," shouted the other commissioners, and the lone unofficial onlooker.

And that's why the mayor had to dig up the $1.50.

BUSINESS HERE EXCELS OTHERS

Ogden in Better Shape Than Northwest Cities, Says Canner on Return

Business conditions in Ogden are better than they are in many cities of the northwest, according to Gage Rodman, Ogden canner, who has returned from a trip, which included Seattle, Spokane, Portland and Butte, Seattle, he said, is waiting up to its advantages from its being a gateway to the Orient and business men there look for increased prosperity.

Mr. Rodman said Seattle is a clearing house for the salmon industry, which has been rather hard hit of late and plants next season will operate on a reduced scale.

"At Portland business conditions are better than in Seattle," Mr. Rodman said. "There seems to be a hum in that city. Merchants have met the reconstruction problems as they should be met. Business is also good in Spokane, but Butte is suffering from the result of depression in the metal mining industry."

Coal Firms Involved in Suit Over Machines

County Women Learn Making of Millinery

Many Weber county women have discovered their talent as milliners as the result of a three days' class in millinery which was conducted at the Federal building under the supervision of Rosina Skidmore, of the extension division of the Utah Agricultural college. The final session of the class was held today.

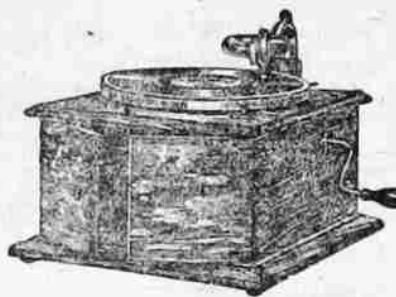

Miss Ellen Agren, county home demonstrator, stated that from twenty to thirty women from various towns in the county had been present to learn some of the essentials of hat making. Many of the efforts of the women have been successful, she said.

Women who attended the class will in turn conduct classes at the towns in which they live, and in this manner initiate others into the mysteries of hat making.

Some years ago, the petition stated, there was a water distributing system from Waterfall canyon. "Way Down East" is Returning Here Sunday

Orpheum Secures Additional Booking of Griffith's Successor the Century.

Through the enterprise of Joe Goss, manager of the Orpheum, W. Griffith's magnificent cinema elaboration of the Wm. A. Brady play "Way Down East," which had a sensational four-day run at the Orpheum beginning last Sunday, has been secured to play a return engagement of one night only on next Sunday evening, February 6.

"Way Down East," for the coming Sunday night's presentation will be shown with all the detail of music, lighting, storm effects and color tones which marked its original presentation here. The orchestra of twenty symphony players will accompany the pictures, providing the unique thematic score which caused unusual success in Ogden.

"Way Down East" has created a furore ever since its initial presentation at the Forty-fourth street theater in New York. Critics have paid it unusual compliments and have hailed David W. Griffith as a leading genius of the screen. The most recent laudation of Griffith's genius came from David Belasco, the recognized master of the appearing stage, who praised "Way Down East" to the fullest.

When "Way Down East" played its initial engagement in Ogden hundreds were disappointed in not being able to obtain seats to the closing performances. Immediately Joe Goss started negotiations with the D. W. Griffith interests and obtained the privilege of an additional booking here.

"Way Down East," which Mr. Goss again presents to the Ogden public on Sunday night, is recognized as the greatest theatrical success of recent years.

The reserved seats for the special one night presentation of "Way Down East" will go on sale at the box office of the Orpheum Friday morning. All seats will be reserved. "Way Down East" will play its former scale of prices.
